Bengaluru, July 24

BYJU's Learning App, a start-up that provides education-related technology is making changes to its business model and in advanced talks to raise $50 million in funding as it looks to enter new geographies.

The app is used by students from kindergarten to 12th grade and the course material is designed in-house by a team of teachers and technologists numbering around 450, which uses games and videos to coach them.

This new round of funding will be deployed to expand in markets such as the US, UK and other Commonwealth countries, in addition to strengthening its presence in India and West Asia, Founder, Byju Raveendran told BusinessLine.

The ed-tech startup which was founded in 2011 runs its across Bengaluru largely online, a change from the past when it started with physical coaching classes in physical classrooms. "It is possible to scale up," says Raveendran. BYJU's Learning App is already profitable in Bengaluru with monthly growth is 15% with revenues of ₹ 100 crore in June 2016 and could reach 200,000 paid students using the app, paying ₹100 average.

At the end of last year, 10% of its business was from physical classrooms, which Raveendran wants to bring down to 5% this year. This is one of the reasons where funding will be sought, Raveendran added. BYJU's Learning App was launched in August and is expected to get a funding of ₹ 100 crore in three rounds. The startup has raised venture capital firms like Sequoia Capital and Sequoia Capital investment firm
